

Deranged Dentists Strike Again?

In an attack that appears to be related to last month's 'rogue dentist' incident, four heavily-drugged men with filed teeth were found unconscious in Times Square early Thursday morning.

One of the victims, Antonio Suarez, had been previously reported as missing, as had at least one of the other victims. The names of the other three victims have not yet been released.

NYPD spokesman Sam Trotter refused to speculate as to whether or not the same attackers were involved in both incidents. "It is simply too early to know for sure. When an attack receives a high level of publicity, copy cats often emerge."

A police detective, speaking on the condition of anonymity, added "It's got the department worried. Something like this always does. They're afraid some other idiots will catch on and the whole thing will snowball."

Lucasta Myth Persists

Self-proclaimed followers of the vigilante figure "Lucasta" continue to grow in number and have begun to group in small sects of worshipers. Lucasta's three month absence has, if anything increased the number and dedication of his followers.

Although the multitude of Lucasta-following groups all have their own views on what, precisely, Lucasta stands for, they do agree on a few things. First and foremost is that he stands up for people who have no one else to turn to. When the vigilante still appeared regularly, he was noteworthy for intervening to save people who felt abandoned by society.

An increasingly large group of Lucasta followers, however, believe that his appearance is a sign that the world will soon end. Some of these groups feel that Lucasta will personally return and lead his followers into the "Age of the Lightbringer" while others believe that the task falls to them.

Lucasta's followers credit him with a wide range of capabilities. He is believed to be able to form and command bolts of lightning. It is also believed that he commands shadowy creatures that assist him. He is also credited with being able to walk on water. The precise metaphysical justification and capabilities of these capabilities are hotly debated by Lucasta's followers.

Family Found Boiled to Death in Bronx Warehouse

The charred bodies of Long Islanders Harold, Mary, Lucy and Emaline Juniper were discovered Tuesday in an abandoned Bronx warehouse.

It appears that the family was placed in a cage and slowly lowered into a vat of boiling water, where they drowned.

The youngest Juniper child, Emmaline (age 15 months) was also seemingly mutilated in a bizarre fashion forensic detectives are still looking into. Ritualistic murder seems a likely scenario in this case, given the circumstances of the cage, and Police are looking into New York's burgeoning occult scene for possible leads.

The Juniper family was first reported missing ten days ago when Dr. Harold Juniper failed to report to work. Police
